Introduction to Business Chapter 8 Leadership in Management

In Chapter 8, you learned about leadership and its role in the management of a company. After all, a company is only as successful its leaders. Leaders see the big picture and never lose sight of their goal. Good leaders manage others by inspiring them. One such leader in American business was Henry Ford. Mr. Ford had the vision of an automaker that would provide quality cars and, more importantly, would exemplify the efficiency of a well-managed, cohesive workforce. Find out more about other leaders in management and do your own research to see how effective leadership in business management can lead to productive companies. Produce and present a 10-minute talk outlining a successful leader in business management.

Action Steps for Planning a Presentation

- 1. Get started by building background knowledge. Read newspaper articles, search the Internet, and make personal phone calls to local experts to understand the issues.
- 2. Decide on a specific topic. Narrow your focus to a topic that interests you.
- 3. Research your topic in greater depth. Use books, local media, the Internet, and personal interviews. Take detailed notes and maintain a bibliography as you work.
- 4. Review your notes and write an outline of your presentation.
- 5. Plan and create visual aids.
- 6. Write a draft of your presentation and practice it. Rewrite, practice again, and present.

Henry Ford was the founder of the successful Ford Motor Company.

Ford introduced assembly line factories for producing mass amounts of vehicles.

Henry Ford had strong views on labor and how the workforce should be treated.

Ford implemented the 5-day, 40-hour working week in order to promote morale and solidarity among his employees.

Henry Ford once proclaimed that, "I hold that it is better to sell a large number of cars at a reasonably small profit ... I hold this because it enables a larger number of people to buy and enjoy the use of a car and because it gives a larger number of men employment at good wages. Those are the two aims I have in life."

Currently the Ford Motor Company retains its founder's emphasis on leadership by sending its managers to its Leadership Development Center to further their leadership skills.
